it is hardly likely that Molotov and his group stood up against Khrushchev without assuring themselves support in the form of real strength behind them. Such a game is not usually begun in the Party without sufficient trumps in hand.  it is more likely that it was Marshal Zhukov himself that provoked the Molotov group by first promising them support and then betraying them to take Khrushchev's side. Zhukov is a much better player and tactician then people in general realize. He had, moreover, the accounts to settle up with Molotov and Kaganovich.  such things discussed privately in every day life now after the 22nd Congress the atmosphere is such that one is no longer afraid to talk with people whom one knows well.  conversation concerning the crisis in the Presidium at present wholly between four walls.	25X1 25X1 25X1
Soviet foreign policy has been for so long carried on by qualified professionals, specialists in their field, and whose orientation is determined by the Communist doctrine. The Soviet Union's foreign policy is the work of many qualified men and a personnel change in the Party Presidium cannot mean very much under present circumstances. That was another thing in Stalin's time. Concerning internal policy, especially economics, it is otherwise  There are no longer any reasonable people in the Soviet Union who believe that living	25X1

Khrushchev took charge of the Industrial District Boards and furnished them with his own supporters. Highly qualified technical people are badly treated and appointed to unsuitable positions without respect to their practical experience. Good engineers and industrial leaders are placed under incompetent, dilletante Party men. Such dilletantes are often very gifted, energetic and active, and it is precisely activity which constitutes the greatest virtue in Khrushchev's eyes. It is not necessary to be oneself an	25X1

it is absolutely true that the Russian people in their entirety will not have war. In the event of war the present attitude is worse than in 1939. It is not only the masses who will not listen to talk of war, but even the intelligentsia, and so widely spread is this attitude that it is even shared by the higher officers' corps.  ambitious Party men can arrange a crisis in foreign	2
